ANALYSIS

Secret Time showed her talent from the very start, breaking her maiden at Longchamp in her second start at two before finishing a narrow 2nd in the G3 Prix d'Aumale in her very next start. At three, she was beaten just lengths Prix three in the G2 Sandringham at Chantilly before coming to the states and finishing 2nd in the Cellars Shiraz to finish her 3-year-old season. She ran into a couple of monsters in the G3 Honey Fox to start her 2021 campaign before just missing the board last out in a tough first level allowance at Keeneland.

PAST PERFORMANCES CONTINUED

She made her US debut in her very next start, running in the Hilltop at Pimlico on Preakness day. Much like her prior start, Secret Time again found herself in a world of trouble, steadying at the ¾ pole before being checked at the 3/8 pole while still finishing well. She got a cleaner trip next out in the Cellars Shiraz at Gulfstream Park West and she responded with a strong finish to run 2nd place finish where she was beaten just 1 ¾ lengths. At four, she ran into G1W Got Stormy and the immensely talented G3W Zofelle in the Honey Fox before just missing out in a Keeneland allowance at the beginning of April.

RACE SCHEDULE

Secret Time has shown talent throughout her career, beginning with her maiden win at Longchamp followed up by her G3 placing at that same top-level track.

She should be in with a good chance in any first-level allowance she goes to and the following races are spots where we think she may fit well.
